Taking Care of Business: Summer Jobs at BU

Every summer the Facilities Department hires students to work as casual labor for a variety of their crews. These are young people who need to earn money over the summer for college. Some of these students have been working steadily over the past four summers. It's a classic win-win situation. To read more about these positions, click here.

Rockin' the Residence Halls—Spring Check Out and Summer Housing

Halls close for the semester on Thursday, May 3rd at 8pm. Get all the current information about how students will check out for the spring semester and proper procedures for moving into residence halls for the summer.

It's Always a Good Time to Think about Studying Abroad!

Summer is a perfect time for students to think about studying abroad whether for an academic year, semester, summer, or winter! Summer Break is a time for students to research the different programs and locations to choose what kind of experience they hope to have while studying abroad.

Supplementing Your Summer: Student Enrichment Outside the Box

The best thing for students to do over the summer is anything to enrich their background or transcripts, but many of them have to work. That's no reason they should be inhibited from doing engaging things that will inspire them and make them more competitive in their fields. Read advice about this topic from Dr. Catherine Sutton, Dean of Academic Advising.

Internship Awareness: from the Office of Career Development

Your student hasn't started an internship search yet? So, s/he was planning on going back to the clothing store, or to the restaurant, or to the high school job for the summer? The best advice we can give students planning on a professional career is to think bigger. Students should think about the future and devote some serious time and energy to finding an internship that fits future career plans. Click here to read more about the importance of internships from Ann Zeman, Director of Career Development.

This Summer Students Can Eat Their Body Weight in Ice Cream...Or They Can Gain a Few Credits: Summer Courses and Summer Grants

Have a student who is interested in getting ahead on some course, looking to fulfill course requirements, wanting to get caught up because s/he changed majors, or needs to focus on challenging courses? Have your student consider taking a summer course at Bellarmine. For information about summer courses and how to get summer grants for them, click here.

Summer Class at Another School

If your student chooses to take summer classes, it's almost always advisable for him or her to stay at BU for a summer term; however, sometimes circumstances prevent your student from taking courses at BU. Perhaps s/he got a stellar summer internship back home, or simply wants to spend a little more time with family before ramping up to a new year. These choices shouldn't deter students from taking the summer classes they need. Students can take summer classes at other universities. But there are a few steps they should make sure to take before registering. Click here to find out how students can take summer classes elsewhere.

Book Buying: A Savvy Shopper's Guide

You and your student have been through the book-buying process a couple of times now, and you've certainly learned a few things. Now that your student is registered for the fall, here are a few handy reminders and pieces of advice to keep in mind for the upcoming year.

Alternative Spring Break Demonstrates Dedication to Service

Six students, Franciscan Friar Fr. John Pozhathuparambil, and Benedictine Sister Michelle Sinkhorn were accompanied by Hannah Piechowski, Assistant Director of Residence Life and Melanie-Prejean Sullivan, Director of Campus Ministry to Lake Charles, Louisiana for Alternative Spring Break. The team worked with Project Build a Future, a building program which originated in the city after Hurricane Rita ravaged the area. Each year for the past 6 years, a team of students and staff from Bellarmine has returned to work on rebuilding and refurbishing homes and lawns.

Each evening, the team spends time in prayer and reflection on the experiences of the day, the trip, the southwest Louisiana culture and hospitality, and the meaning of servant leadership.

This photo is taken on the front porch of Nicole Miller Austin, the Director of the Project. The knight on the porch greets us each year as we have an evening meal in her home with her family—jambalaya and various local delicacies.

"It's encouraging to return to this community, year after year and to see the growth and improvement. It's clear the community is still struggling to rebuild and it's rewarding to be part of that recovery," says Sarah Hoffeditz, Senior who had been twice before returning in 2012.

"This year we went to the Gulf of Mexico and stopped off at the Sabine/Creole Nature Trail on the way back. The alligators, wild boar and marine fowl were plentiful again. For the first few years after the hurricane, the salt water which came ashore had destroyed so many habitats that it felt almost like a dead zone. The grasses are green again and the wildlife seems to have recovered." –Melanie-Prejean Sullivan.

Rhodes' Reads: Have a Little Faith

The last book for this academic year that I recommend for parents is Mitch Albom's Have a Little Faith. This book tells the age old story of how our hearts need to be a vital part of our thinking. For many of us the need to infuse our hearts with our thoughts and actions is a lesson we need to learn and practice in all that we do. This story of faith, hope and service reminds all of us our need to embrace our unique gifts and to look for and appreciate the many gifts of others.

I look forward to seeing all of our new and returning students in August.
