Description of Hazing Incident:

The student organization engaged in conduct subjecting at least one member to an act of group-defined “punishment” which subjected the individual to degradation, humiliation, embarrassment, or compromised their human dignity. As an ice-breaker game, the group had three members play a card game with the loser having to choose between three “punishments;” shaving their head, shaving an eyebrow, or drinking spoiled milk. When the loser was determined, one of the hosts asked the crowd what punishment they would like to see and the crowd chanted “shave [their] head,” which the host began to do. The organization’s advisor was aware of the activity.
