BU-041-ON	COVID-19: In This Together	0	Open	20	20	Hume, McNulty		Books	SU4
	Online	5/26/2020 - 7/30/2020					The purpose of this course is to help students gain a comprehensive, interdisciplinary perspective on the causes, effects, and far-reaching impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic. Students will examine these impacts on individual, community, national, and global levels. So, our goal for the course is to bring the perspectives of several different disciplines together and understand the COVID 19 pandemic in a new way that would be impossible in any singular discipline. As such, this course will be taught by several faculty from a variety of disciplines-biology, philosophy, math, music, communications, and more--each bringing their own lesson, and the perspective of their discipline to our discussion of COVID 19. Students will be encouraged to identify and explore themes of the COVID 19 pandemic that cut across many different disciplines. Understanding the perspectives of many disciplines will allow students to see the "bigger picture" of the pandemic, and encourage them to explore the interconnectedness of the disciplines and their viewpoints, and make insightful connections among them. This course is cross-listed with BU-141, BU-341, COMM-342, ENVS-440, HLTH-423, IDC-401, PSYC 409, SOC-341, and THEA-246. It is also available for 1-credit (BU-141-ON) or 0-credit with only P/F grading (BU-041). Bellarmine degree-seeking students may consult the Student Success Center for assistance with selecting their section. All sections of this course have optional synchronous discussion sessions.

So, our goal for the course is to bring the perspectives of several different disciplines together and understand the COVID 19 pandemic in a new way that would be impossible in any singular discipline. As such, this course will be taught by several faculty from a variety of disciplines-biology, philosophy, math, music, communications, and more--each bringing their own lesson, and the perspective of their discipline to our discussion of COVID 19. Students will be encouraged to identify and explore themes of the COVID 19 pandemic that cut across many different disciplines. Understanding the perspectives of many disciplines will allow students to see the "bigger picture" of the pandemic, and encourage them to explore the interconnectedness of the disciplines and their viewpoints, and make insightful connections among them. This course is cross-listed with BU-141, BU-341, COMM-342, ENVS-440, HLTH-423, IDC-401, PSYC 409, SOC-341, and THEA-246. It is also available for 1-credit (BU-141-ON) or 0-credit with only P/F grading (BU-041). Bellarmine degree-seeking students may consult the Student Success Center for assistance with selecting their section. All sections of this course have optional synchronous discussion sessions.

	Online	5/26/2020 - 7/30/2020					The purpose of this course is to help students gain a comprehensive, interdisciplinary perspective on the causes, effects, and far-reaching impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic. Students will examine these impacts on individual, community, national, and global levels. So, our goal for the course is to bring the perspectives of several different disciplines together and understand the COVID 19 pandemic in a new way that would be impossible in any singular discipline. As such, this course will be taught by several faculty from a variety of disciplines-biology, philosophy, math, music, communications, and more--each bringing their own lesson, and the perspective of their discipline to our discussion of COVID 19. Students will be encouraged to identify and explore themes of the COVID 19 pandemic that cut across many different disciplines. Understanding the perspectives of many disciplines will allow students to see the "bigger picture" of the pandemic, and encourage them to explore the interconnectedness of the disciplines and their viewpoints, and make insightful connections among them. This course is cross-listed with BU-141, BU-341, COMM-342, ENVS-440, HLTH-423, IDC-401, PSYC 409, SOC-341, and THEA-246. It is also available for 1-credit (BU-141-ON) or 0-credit with only P/F grading (BU-041). Bellarmine degree-seeking students may consult the Student Success Center for assistance with selecting their section. All sections of this course have optional synchronous discussion sessions. Must have Junior standing or higher.
